A very interesting entertainment took place here in P. O. S. A. hall on Friday night. A large crowd was present. Rev. Deatur Edwards delivered a very enjoyable address, taking for his subject "The advantages and purposes of secret orders."

Hon. C. R. Coleman made a short address, his remarks being well chosen.

Attorney T. Stokely Coleman made an eloquent address, taking as his subject "The principles of American government." He said in part that the South was as loyal to the flag as the North and as patriotic. He was followed by Col. R. C. Blaydes, whose subject was "The relations existing between the United States and Japan." He declared that he favored the annexation of Canada, the conquest of Mexico, neutrality of the Panama canal and a sale of the Philippine Islands. He said he hoped there would never be any necessity for war, and having been in battle, it was his hope that he would follow Dr. Cooke to the pole. Col. Blaydes said the German and Spanish language should be taught in the free schools of Virginia and closed his address with a tribute to the memory of Gen. Robert E. Lee and Gen. U. S. Grant, declaring that the Constitution should follow the flag. At the close of his address he was the recipient of many congratulations.
